THE DREAM IN ISLAMFrom Qur'anic Tradition to Jihadist Inspiration

Iain R. Edgar

In this study, the author explores some key aspects of Islamic dream theory and interpretation as well as the role and significance of night dreams for contemporary Muslims. In his analysis of the Islamic debates surrounding the role of "true" dreams in historical and contemporary Islamic prophecy, the author specifically addresses the significance of Al-Qaeda and Taliban dream practices and ideology. Dreams of "heaven," for example, are often instrumental in determining jihadist suicidal action, and "heavenly" dreams are also evidenced within other contemporary human conflicts such as Israel-Palestine and Kosovo-Serbia. By exploring patterns of dreams within this context, a cross-cultural, psychological, and experiential understanding of the role and significance of such contemporary critical political and personal imagery can be achieved.

Iain R. Edgar is a Social Anthropologist at the University of Durham, UK.

FORTHCOMINGTHE POLITICS OF EDUCATION REFORM IN THE MIDDLE EAST*Self and Other in Textbooks and CurriculaEdited by Samira Alayan and Achim Rohde with Sarhan Dhouib

"The essays are very high quality, written by well-qualified researchers, and address a subject of high interest to those concerned with development/political issues related to the Middle East. They...make a significant contribution to the field of educational reform and development, identity construction and nation building."

Eleanor Doumato, Watson Institute, Brown University

"This volume will prove a valuable contribution for scholars and policymakers interested in educational policy, curricular reform, historiography, and Arab World identities."

Nabil Al-Tikriti, University of Mary Washington

FROM THE BACKLIST*A DIFFERENT KIND OF WAR*The UN Sanctions Regime in Iraq

H. C. von Sponeck, with a Foreword by Celso N. Amorim, Foreign Minister of Brazil

"This is one of the most important books I can remember. Hans von Sponeck, one of the UN's most senior and respected officials, who resigned rather than carry out inhuman US Administration-driven policies against the ordinary people of Iraq, has blown the whistle on one of the greatest acts of aggression: the medieval siege of Iraq. Read this superb book and you will understand the danger the world faces from an imperialist power." John Pilger

"von Sponeck's analysis is wide-ranging, taking in not just the minutiae of economic sanctions but also what he sees as the flawed priorities of the UN Compensation Commission, the illegal maintenance of the northern and southern no-fly zones... At a time when Washington finds itself asserting a moral justification for continued intervention in Iraq, A Different Kind of War reminds us... that the moral authority of the United States on the issue is seriously wanting." Journal of Genocide Research

H. C. von Sponeck has served as a member of the board of trustees of various non-governmental organizations in Switzerland, Italy and the US, as an adviser for multilateral issues, and as a consultant for personnel development in international organizations.

DIAMONDS AND WARState, Capital, and Labor in British-Ruled Palestine

David De Vries

"The author's meticulous research, uncovering and fruitfully utilizing a rich body of archival and published sources, has enabled him to unfold the fascinating story of the war-related emergence of diamond cutting and polishing in Palestine and place it within its appropriate domestic colonial, and international contexts...The detailed and insightful narrative it offers is a valuable contribution to our knowledge." The Journal of Israeli History

Based on previously unexamined historical documents, this book is the first in English to tell the story of the formation of one of the world's main strongholds of diamond production and trade in Palestine during the 1930s and 1940s. This book unravels the Middle-eastern pattern of state intervention in private capital and recasts this craft culture's inseparability from international politics during a period of war and transformation of empire.

David De Vries is an Associate Professor at the Department of Labor Studies at Tel Aviv University, Israel.

JUDGMENT AT ISTANBUL

The Armenian Genocide Trials

Vahakn N. Dadrian and Taner Akçam

A prime source of legal evidence and eye-witness testimony of the intent and the crime of genocide against the Armenians, this is a new, authoritative translation and detailed analysis of the Takvim-i Vekâyi—the official Ottoman Government record of the Turkish Military Tribunals concerning the crimes committed against the Armenians during World War I. The authors, one an Armenian, the other a Turk, generally recognized as the foremost experts on the Armenian Genocide, have situated the trial proceedings within their historical and legal context. An extensive analysis of the historical origins, political nature, and legal implications of the criminal prosecution of the twentieth century's first state-sponsored crime of genocide, this book is essential for historians, political scientists, sociologists, legal scholars, and policy makers.

Vahakn N. Dadrian is the Director of Genocide Research at the Zoryan Institute. Taner Akçam is Associate Professor of History and the Kaloosdian/Mugar Chair in Armenian Genocide Studies at the Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies, Clark University.

FROM THE BACKLIST

THE HISTORY OF THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

Ethnic Conflict from the Balkans to Anatolia to the Caucasus

Vahakn N. Dadrian

"...totally innovative... Dadrian exhibits exemplary objectivity and provides us with the fruits of a life of scholarship and research. An inestimable contribution to our knowledge of history."

Journal of the Society of Armenian Studies

"Dadrian makes [an] important contribution to our understanding of the dynamics of the Ottoman decision to destroy its Armenian subjects."

MESA Bulletin

"[The History of the Armenian Genocide] is without doubt the most important work ever done on this subject. [Dadrian's] painstaking archival work, and [his] wide reading in the relevant sources in Turkish, Armenian, German, French and English has no parallel. The book will stand as a monument parallel to Hilberg's master work, The Destruction of the European Jews... [He has] forced me to rethink the entire issue of comparisons and differences between the Armenian experience in World War I and the Jewish experience in World War II."

Steven T. Katz, Cornell University

FISHERS AND SCIENTISTS IN MODERN TURKEY

The Management of Natural Resources, Knowledge and Identity on the Eastern Black Sea Coast

Ståle Knudsen

"The book is well organized and the study follows smoothly from one chapter to the next offering a well-informed analysis of the nature-culture dichotomy on the Eastern Black Sea coast... This book's inter-disciplinary approach should make it appealing to an array of audiences from fisheries scientists and managers to environmental historians and cultural geographers."

H-Environment

"...[in this] well written book Knudsen delivers an intriguing study about the meaning of the fish, the fishing activity as a way of life, and the culture of the fishermen. His ability to explain the culture and the life and hard work of Turkish fishers is outstanding."

REPRODUCING CLASS

Education, Neoliberalism, and the Rise of the New Middle Class in Istanbul

Henry J. Rutz and Erol M. Balkan

"...a fresh and an important contribution ...this book presents an ethnographically rich and conceptually strong account of recent transformations in the educational field and their implications for class relations in Turkey."

Middle East Journal

"...the book critically draws attention to a number of key issues that are often taken for granted in the literature on neoliberalism... Co-written by an economist and an anthropologist, Reproducing Class is a refreshing attempt to integrate the analytical perspectives of macroeconomics with the ethnographic traditions of anthropology."

DYNAMIC BELONGINGContemporary Jewish Collective Identities

Edited by Harvey E. Goldberg, Steven M. Cohen, and Ezra Kopelowitz

World Jewry today is concentrated in the US and Israel, and while distinctive Judaic approaches and practices have evolved in each society, parallels also exist. This volume offers studies of substantive and creative aspects of Jewish belonging. While research in Israel on Judaism has stressed orthodox or "extreme" versions of religiosity, linked to institutional life and politics, moderate and less systematized expressions of Jewish belonging are overlooked. This volume explores the fluid and dynamic nature of identity-building among Jews and the many issues that cut across different Jewish groupings. An important contribution to scholarship on contemporary Jewry, it reveals the often unrecognized dynamism in new forms of Jewish identification and affiliation in Israel and in the Diaspora.

Harvey E. Goldberg is Emeritus professor and Sarah Allen Shaine Chair in Sociology and Anthropology at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Steven M. Cohen is Research Professor of Jewish Social Policy at Hebrew Union College and Director of the Berman Jewish Policy Archive at NYU Wagner. Ezra Kopelowitz is a sociologist specializing in Israel-Diaspora relations and issues of Jewish identity, education, and religion in Israel and the United States.

CARING FOR THE 'HOLY LAND'
Filipina Domestic Workers in Israel

Claudia Liebelt

In Israel, as in numerous countries of the global North, Filipina migrant women have been recruited in large numbers for domestic work. While the country has special significance as the "Holy Land" for the predominantly devout Christian Filipina women, it also is at the center of the Middle East conflict, which affects Filipinos no less than other residents. This study provides a nuanced account of Filipina caregivers in Israel and shows how they have succeeded in creating their own collective spaces in their attempt to fulfill their dreams of a better life in spite of the adversities they face.

Claudia Liebelt is Lecturer of Social Anthropology at the University of Bayreuth (Germany).

HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS*Resettlement, Memories, Identities

Edited by Dalia Ofer, Françoise S. Ouzan, and Judy Tydor Baumele-Schwartz

"This is a well-conceived volume that addresses a significant problem in the history of the Jews in the twentieth century – how survivors of the Holocaust resettled in many parts of the world, rebuilt (or failed to rebuild) their personal lives, and contributed (or did not contribute) to the development of Jewish communities and cultures in their new countries of residence. It is unique in both its interdisciplinary character and geographical scope."

David Engel, New York University

"...an important contribution to the evolving field of research on Jewish life in the aftermath of the Holocaust. Almost every chapter introduces new research on unexamined areas of postwar Jewish history... By framing the study in a broad comparative manner, the book is one of the first of its kind and will make for essential reading in the field."

Avinoaam Patt, University of Hartford

Dalia Ofer is the Max and Rita Haber Professor of Holocaust and East European Studies (Emeritus) at the Avraham Harman Institute of Contemporary Jewry and at the Melton Center for Jewish Education at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Françoise S. Ouzan is a Senior Researcher at the Goldstein-Goren Diaspora Research Center of Tel Aviv University, Associate Researcher at the French Research Center in Jerusalem (CRFJ/CNRS), and Lecturer at the International School for Holocaust Studies of Yad Vashem. Judy Tydor Baumele-Schwartz is chair of the Graduate Program in Contemporary Jewry, Director of the Institute for Religious Zionism and Professor of Jewish History at Bar-Ilan University in Ramat Gan, Israel.

*FROM THE BACKLISTSTATE PRACTICES AND ZIONIST IMAGES
Shaping Economic Development in Arab Towns in Israel

David A. Wesley, with a foreword by Emanuel Marx

"This is a book by an Israeli anthropologist of major importance. Wesley shows how these [settlement] policies were implemented in such a way that the Jewish population benefited and the Arabs did not. [The author], appalled by the systematic discriminatory results of state practices, takes a moral stand, but allows the reader to draw his own conclusions."

ISRAELI IDENTITIES

Ethnic Conflict from the Balkans to Jews and Arabs Facing the Self and the Other

Yair Auron

In a comprehensive examination of the identity issue, this study focuses on attitudes toward the Jewish people in Israel and the Diaspora; the Holocaust and its repercussions on identity; attitudes toward the state of Israel and Zionism; and attitudes toward Jewish religion. Israeli Arab students (Israeli Palestinians) and Jewish Israeli students were asked corresponding questions regarding their identity. It was found that, rather than lessening its impact over the years, the Holocaust has become a major factor, at times the paramount factor in Jewish identity. Similarly, among Palestinians the Naqba has become a major factor in Palestinian-Israeli identity. The overall results show that the identity of a Jewish citizen of Israel is not purely Israeli, nor is it purely Jewish.

Yair Auron is a professor of genocide and contemporary Judaism at the Open University of Israel and the Kibbutzim College of Education.

THE ECONOMY IN JEWISH HISTORY

New Perspectives on the Interrelationship between Ethnicity and Economic Life

Edited by Gideon Reuveni and Sarah Wobick-Segev
With a Foreword by Derek Penslar

Jewish historiography tends to stress the religious, cultural, and political aspects of the past. By contrast the "economy" has been pushed to the margins of the Jewish discourse and scholarship since the end of the Second World War. This volume takes a fresh look at Jews and the economy, arguing that a broader, cultural approach is needed to understand the central importance of the economy. The very dynamics of economy and its ability to function depend on the ability of individuals to interact, and on the shared values and norms that are fostered within ethnic communities. Thus this volume sheds new light on the interrelationship between religion, ethnicity, culture, and the economy, revealing the potential of an "economic turn" in the study of history.

Gideon Reuveni is a Lecturer for modern European and Jewish history at the University of Melbourne. Sarah Wobick-Segev is a Jim Joseph postdoctoral teaching fellow at Syracuse University.

VISION AND CHANGE IN INSTITUTIONAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP

The Transformation from Science to Commercialization

Israel Drori and Dana Landau

"This is an excellent body of ethnographic scholarship on institutional entrepreneurship within the defense R&D sector, beautifully written and complete with a rich description of Gamma – a truly deep ethnography."

Siri Terjesen, Indiana University

"This book is a pleasure to read. It is a highly unusual ethnography that provides a window into an institutional space (nuclear research) that is virtually invisible to the public eye. Given the obvious security issues involved, it is even more remarkable that the work was done. The ethnography itself is brilliantly written, showing 'Gamma' during a major transition in organizational ethics and activities."

Benson Honig, Teresa Cascioli Chair in Entrepreneurial Leadership, MacMaster University

Israel Drori is a Professor on the Faculty of the School of Business at the College of Management, Israel, and a Visiting Professor at the Faculty of Management, Tel-Aviv University. Dana Landau is a Senior Lecturer in the school of Management and Economics at the Academic College of Tel Aviv (MTA).

WOMEN AND THE POLITICS OF MILITARY CONFRONTATION

Palestinian and Israeli Gendered Narratives of Dislocation

Edited by Nahla Abdo and Ronit Lentin

"Highly analytical yet personal and painful, the book can serve as an excellent textbook for the comparative study of gender, feminism and nationalism or for the comparative feminist analysis of apartheid systems. It is now in its second edition. This means that it circulates in circuits of knowledge, and certainly deserves the bravas it has already received."

ISLAM AND ASSISTED REPRODUCTIVE TECHNOLOGIES

Sunni and Shia Perspectives

Edited by Marcia C. Inhorn and Soraya Tremayne

"This groundbreaking volume is highly likely to become a point of departure for all future engagements with biotechnologies in the Middle East. The collection expertly reveals in vivid detail the 'local moral worlds' of 'biotechnologies of life' within the Islamic landscape. Unprecedented and unique, this book challenges both popular misconceptions and academic gaps in knowledge vis-à-vis new developments in bioscience and technology from theocratic Iran to secular Turkey."

ISLAM AND NEW KINSHIP
Reproductive Technology and the Shariah in Lebanon
Morgan Clarke

"Those who are particularly interested in the study of reproductive technologies will find notions of milk kinship and adoption aversion useful in considering how ART is contextualized globally. Students of kinship will benefit from this text because it provides a case study of how a culturally relative approach to kinship enriches our understanding of the meanings and markers of the important relationships within a culture/religious tradition."

Contemporary Sociology

"This book is a mine of information, carefully researched and lucidly argued. It opens up a fascinating problematic (that is, a can of worms) that only Muslims (all Muslims, male and female) need seriously to address over the coming decades. The shape of future Muslim attitudes depends on the outcomes of this."

KIN, GENE, COMMUNITY
Reproductive Technologies among Jewish Israelis

Edited by Daphna Birenbaum-Carmeli and Yoram S. Carmeli

Israel is the only country in the world that offers free fertility treatments to nearly any woman who requires medical assistance. It also has the world's highest per capita usage of in-vitro fertilization. Examining state policies and the application of reproductive technologies among Jewish Israelis, this volume explores the role of tradition and politics in the construction of families within local Jewish populations. The contributors—anthropologists, bioethicists, jurists, physicians and biologists—highlight the complexities surrounding these treatments, which are explored within local and global contexts.

CONCEPTUALIZING IRANIAN ANTHROPOLOGY
Past and Present Perspectives

Edited by Shahnaz R. Nadjmbadi

"In all, these useful and informative articles assess the status of anthropology of/in Iran realistically, even candidly... [They] reflect the cautiously optimistic attitude at the time of the conference, a hopefulness that meanwhile has withered...[and] illustrate the difficulties of transplanting a young social science based on humanism and curiosity (rather than pragmatism) to a society that is distrustful of intellectual pursuits deemed as potentially dangerous to an authoritarian state." Anthropos

"The authors present an incisive and illuminating overview of Iranian anthropology...Despite [considerable] difficulties, the authors uniformly demonstrate a reflexive, ethically responsible, and politically aware anthropology and offer valuable insights about the greater emphasis on problem-focused research by Iranian anthropologists and the potential for a valuable future role for applied anthropology in Iran." Choice

THE HADRAMI DIASPORA Community-Building on the Indian Ocean Rim

Leif Manger

"While the book's focus is largely historical..., the analyses of Hadrami identity, social order, and religious change are first-rate." Choice

"A fascinating subject, based on extensive fieldwork and excellent case studies of diaspora communities."

Christopher Davidson, Centre for Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies, Durham, UK

Hadramis around the world have been linked to networks of extremist, Islamic-inspired movements—Osama bin Laden, leader of Al Qaeda and descendant of a prominent Hadramis family, as the most infamous example. The author expertly elucidates the complexity of the diasporic process, showing how it contrasts with the conventional understanding of the Hadrami diaspora as an unchanging society with predefined cultural characteristics originating in the homeland. The author offers a deepened understanding of links between Yemen and Indian Ocean regions (including India, Southeast Asia, and the Horn of Africa) and the emerging international community of Muslims.

FROM THE BACKLIST CHALLENGING ETHNIC CITIZENSHIP German and Israeli Perspectives on Immigration

Edited by Daniel Levy and Yfaat Weiss

"...sophisticated and highly informative...The authors and topics are diverse and represent a spectrum of useful progressive thought." International Migration Review

This volume offers rich empirical and theoretical material involving historical developments, demographic changes, sociological problems, anthropological insights, and political implications. Focusing on the three dimensions of citizenship: sovereignty and control, the allocation of social and political rights, and questions of national self-understanding, the essays bring to light the elements that are distinctive for either society but also point to similarities that owe as much to nation-specific characteristics as to evolving patterns of global migration.

Daniel Levy is Assistant Professor in the Sociology Department at the State University of New York, Stony Brook. Yfaat Weiss studied at the Universities of Tel-Aviv and Hamburg and is presently a Senior Lecturer in the Department for Jewish History at Haifa University and Director of the Bucerius Center for Research of Contemporary German History and Society.

FROM THE BACKLIST IMMIGRANTS AND BUREAUCRATS Ethiopians in an Israeli Absorption Center

Esther Hertzog

With a Preface by Emanuel Marx

In her study of Ethiopian immigrants, the author reaches the conclusion that the absorption centers, which are central to Israeli immigration policy, present an extreme case of bureaucratic control over immigrants; they hinder rather than facilitate integration through the creation of power-dependence relations, with immigrants – whose lives and social structures are constantly interfered with by the officials – being cast as weak, defenseless and needy. They are reduced to helpless charges of these officials whose main goals are to expand and perpetuate their respective organizations and to consolidate their own positions within them. Thus the absorption centers, rather than furthering integration, create dependence on state control and social segregation.

Esther Hertzog is now Lecturer in Sociology and Anthropology at Beit Berl College.

FROM THE BACKLIST DOCUMENTING TRANSNATIONAL MIGRATION Jordanian Men Working and Studying in Europe, Asia and North America

Richard Antoun

"This book provides very rich material on long-term experiences of Arab migrants abroad and contributes to the literature on migration and Arab diasporas." JRAI

Most studies on transnational migration either stress assimilation, circulatory migration, or the negative impact of migration. This remarkable study, which covers migrants from one Jordanian village to 17 different countries in Europe, Asia, and North America, emphasizes the resiliency of transnational migrants after long periods of absence, social encapsulation, and stress, and their ability to construct social networks and reinterpret traditions in such a way as to mix the old and the new in a scenario that incorporates both worlds. Focusing on the humanistic aspects of the migration experience, this book examines questions such as birth control, women's work, retention of tribal law, and the changing attitudes of migrants towards themselves, their families, their home communities, and their nation..

Richard T. Antoun is Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

DETERRITORIALIZED YOUTHSahrawi and Afghan Refugees at the Margins of the Middle EastEdited by Dawn Chatty

"... a valuable, innovative contribution to the anthropological study of refugee youth, as it focuses on refugee populations on which relatively little research has been done so far... [and offers] a sound methodological approach and rich qualitative data."

Cordula Strocka, Free University Berlin

"This is a well-written, interesting text that offers several contributions to knowledge. First, it provides insight into the experiences of two long-standing refugee populations in the Middle East – Sahrawi and Afghan – for which there is little empirical data. Second, most chapters of the book adopt an inter-generational perspective, providing differential views and experiences of young people, adults and elders."

Christina Clark, Saint Paul University

'BROTHERS' OR OTHERS?Propriety and Gender for Muslim Arab Sudanese in Egypt

Anita Fábos

"This book is a welcome contribution to anthropological debate and to the scant work on Sudanese transnational mobility."

American Ethnologist

"In addition to writing a thoroughly engaging ethnography of Sudanese residents in Cairo, Fábos makes an important contribution to our understanding of the intersection of race/ethnicity and gender in the construction of diaspora identities."

African Affairs

"This rich ethnographic work complicates the notions of identity, loyalty, citizenship, and inclusiveness, showing how ethnic categories and cultural references can be manipulated to determine affiliation, inclusion, or marginalization... To understand the fluidity of these identities, as well as the ambiguities and contradictions of the legal and political status of Sudanese in Egyptian society, Fabos employs not only a wealth of ethnographic research, but also significant knowledge of colonial history and international legal regimes."

(RE)CONSTRUCTING ARMENIA IN LEBANON AND SYRIAEthno-Cultural Diversity and the State in the Aftermath of a Refugee Crisis

Nicola Migliorino

"... an impressively researched account of one of the major refugee crises of the 20th century ... Migliorino offers a thoughtful account of the Armenian refugees' experience, focusing on religion, cultural production, and communal political organization and covering 1923-2003, a span of three or four generations. This is an analytical narrative of the making of a society, from refugees to citizens... this fine historical account is also an exemplary developmental study of the ways in which refugees create a permanent diaspora society. Relevant to all social scientists. Highly recommended."

CHILDREN OF PALESTINEExperiencing Forced Migration in the Middle EastEdited by Dawn Chatty and Gillian Lewando Hundt

"[It is] a highly convincing and often heart-breaking chronology of suffering. Specific but highly representative, selective but fundamentally factual, each chapter of the book unfolds the endless saga of Palestinian plight."

Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

"The book captures in poignant detail the experiences of the third and fourth generation of Palestinian exiles and provides a provocative look into Palestinian social dynamics across the divide of space and generation."

Journal of Palestine Studies

"This is a useful resource for anyone working in Palestinian refugee camps...I feel privileged to have had the chance to review this book."

ANTHROPOLOGY OF THE MIDDLE EAST

Editor: Soheila Shahshahani, Shahid Beheshti University, Iran

Recent political events have shown an alarming lack of awareness in western countries of life in the Middle East. Anthropologists, trained in analysing local discourses and social actions and their socio-political and historical contexts, play an important role in making social and cultural developments in the Middle East more comprehensible to a wider world.

This peer-reviewed journal provides a forum for scholarly exchange between anthropologists and other social scientists working in and on the Middle East. The journal's aim is to disseminate, on the basis of informed analysis and insight, a better understanding of Middle Eastern cultures and thereby to achieve a greater appreciation of Middle Eastern contributions to our culturally diverse world.

NOMADIC PEOPLES

Editor: Saverio Krätli

"Nomadic Peoples now serves the international community as the single most important information resource about nomadic and pastoral peoples around the world. Offering high quality, peer-reviewed research reports from both in-country and external experts, Nomadic Peoples bridges the gap between disciplines, between academics and applied professionals, and between East and West, North and South. To learn about the current circumstances and future possibilities of peripatetic and pastoral populations, Nomadic Peoples is an invaluable guide."

Philip Carl Salzman, Professor of Anthropology, McGill University

Nomadic Peoples is an international journal published for the Commission on Nomadic Peoples, International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences. Its primary concerns are the current circumstances of all nomadic peoples around the world and their prospects. Its readership includes all those interested in nomadic peoples—scholars, researchers, planners and project administrators.

ISRAEL STUDIES REVIEW

An Interdisciplinary Journal

Editor: Yoram Peri, Gildenhorn Institute for Israel Studies

Israel Studies Forum is relaunched in 2011 as the Israel Studies Review, under the editorship of Yoram Peri, Gildenhorn Institute for Israel Studies.

The Israel Studies Review (ISR) is the journal of the Association for Israel Studies, an international and interdisciplinary scholarly organization dedicated to the study of all aspects of Israeli society, history, politics, and culture.

ISR explores modern and contemporary Israel from the perspective of the social sciences, history, the humanities, and cultural studies and welcomes submissions on these subjects. The journal also pays close attention to the relationships of Israel to the Middle East and to the wider world, and encourages scholarly articles with this broader theoretical or comparative approach provided the focus remains on modern Israel.

REGIONS AND COHESION

Regiones y Cohesión / Régions et Cohésion

Editors: Harlan Koff and Carmen Maganda, both of the University of Luxembourg

The journal of the Consortium for Comparative Research on Regional Integration and Social Cohesion (RISC), a cross-regional, interdisciplinary, and multi-lingual network of socially conscious and prestigious research institutes in Europe, North America, South America and Africa.

Due to the dramatic changes in global affairs related to regional integration, studies can no longer be limited to the analysis of economic competitiveness and political power in global geopolitics. Regions and Cohesion is a needed platform for academics and practitioners alike to disseminate both empirical research and normative analysis of topics related to human and environmental security, social cohesion, and governance. It covers themes, such as the management of strategic resources, environment and society, social risk and marginalization, disasters and policy responses, violence, war and urban security, the quality of democracy, development, public health, immigration, human rights, organized crime, and cross-border human security.

Interdisciplinary in nature and multi-lingual in character (English, French, Spanish), the journal promotes the comparative examination of the human and environmental impacts of various aspects of regional integration across geographic areas, time periods, and policy arenas.
